New York Day
by Day

By O. O. McINTIRE
(Copyright 1925, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—
Thoughts and scenes while strolling around New York: Mottled signs on Franklin street. And sloppy Turkish baths. The Tomb.
Like a cold, gray ghost. Barred door of night—an agonizing scream.

How few appreciate every day freedom. Wonder if there was ever a man who didn't want to sing tenor in a quartette? There's a nice job. Holding a little red dynamite flag. Boom! Boom!

And you rest an hour. Catch this one—a truck driver with a Van Dyke beard. Care for it?

THE INCENSANT rumble around Brooklyn Bridge. A sure fire spot in old melodrama. A knife! A pure! And the den under Brooklyn Bridge. Those were thrills. Leather lugged shoes shiners. Bent noses. Cauliflower ears and who knows.

The curb hawkers—neckties
gray, shoe laces, matches, pencils and naughty pictures. And the old man who whistles grotesque songs in the street. They have saw street and its jostling non-day throng. Streetographers glimpse frivolity. Clerks in collared shirts. Dime novels and pinch coats.

DOUGHTNUT and serve-yourself parlors. Music 1. cafeterias. Old men who sit in doorways and puff cigars. Five dollar luggage.
Dollar-a-day clothing shops stairs. A soda fountain where customers spill out into the street carrying a soda.

Wall Street and Trinity square.
The cross in a street of gold. Low brawl from the Stock Exchange.
Flying messengers on skates. The Baboo of Wall Street on his soap box—preaching. Fair-bell through the years, winter and summer. And the crowds listen, too.

THE HOW of steamship offices.
Banner carriers for passport photographers. Beggars who need just $2 more for tickets home. The flag that stands up on the pier harbor. Dipping gulls racing out to liners. Now for a seat along the Battery wall. To dream! The sea makes you do that.

Father and the Stove

by O. Lawrence Hawthorne

The other day a father wrote:
The time is drawing near
When we must move the hard-coal stove;
I wish that you were here!

The message awakened memories
Of days when, as a lad,
I was compelled to answer such
A summons from my dad.

I well remember how we tugged
Until the blamed thing stood Exactly on a certain spot.
As Mother said it should;

And then about the time I thought
I might at last retire
To hold the bloming pipe
While Father fixed the wire.

Now, Father never said a word
To sterilize his dam;
He didn't think that "damn" or "hell"
Would help him reach his goal;

He gripped and suffered silently
And didn't cuss at all—
In those in confidence he told
His troubles to the wall.

The melancholy atmosphere
That filled that old front room
While Father heaved with stove
Was like the fall of doom.

And yet I'd like to go
In answer to his call—
To see if Father still confides
His troubles to the wall.

The melancholy atmosphere
That filled that old front room
While Father heaved with stove
Was like the fall of doom.

And yet I'd like to go
In answer to his call—
To see if Father still confides
His troubles to the wall.

CURING SICK GOLDFISH

L. E. SUBARSKI

Goldfish are not as hardy as is generally supposed, and many fine specimens are lost because of ignorance on the owner's part.

When these fish are kept in aquariums they are liable to suffer from a curious disease known as fungus growth. This takes the form of a spreading white deposit.

As the growth increases the fish becomes listless and discolored to swim. It will certainly die unless curative measures are taken as soon as the white coating is noticed.

Give the fish a salt bath—this is one of the best ways for combating fungus growth. Prepare rather strong solution of common salt and water, allowing a heaped teaspoon of salt in each pint of water. When the salt has dissolved, put the mixture into a bowl.

Now catch the fish, using a net
if he evades your hand. Holding the "patient" very gently, put it into the bowl of salt water and let it there for about three minutes.

Then put it into a bowl of fresh water, and make this change several times—allowing from two to three minutes in each bowl.

When the fish is replaced in the aquarium it will almost immediately show improvement, more life and activity, and will continue to swim. It will certainly die unless curative measures are taken as
soon as the white coating is noticed.

MACKMEN LOSE TO DETROITS

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Washington and Philadelphia were one full game further apart today in the fight for the American League pennant, but there was no discouragement in the recovery of championship form by either club.

Although the champion Senators yesterday stretched their lead advantage to a game and a half by defeating the Pirates 4 to 1, the Phillies, who were straight with a 3-2 decision over the White Sox, favorable breaks accomplished for the leaders what a paucity of hits would otherwise have made impossible. Blunders allowed the victors only five scattered blows, but errors at catcher and first base, and a scoring two of their three runs.

The winning counter in the ninth inning posed a riddle for the single astute. Ferguson allowed Chicago eight hits, but kept him well scattered.

Philadelphia, continuing to show signs of having cracked both in the offense and defense, ran its second western league streak over four games at Turner.

The steam roller flattened out the Rockies, 5 to 1, chasing four hits in the fourth and fifth of which were divided by the veteran center, Ty Cobb and Red Wingo.

Three safeties, two of which were enough for the St. Louis Cardinals to defeat the Yankees 1 to 0.

St. Louis failing to use eight batters permitted by Clark. In the eighth inning, the Pirates, led by Zander of Boston and Miller of Cleveland, the Indians were swept 2 to 0 by the Braves.

Man, who, to told home both men.

Twice hitting better than an upstart against the Pirates in Philadelphia, 10-6, after five pitchers had failed to check the Quakers.

By Cuyler and the Pittsburgh pair. The Braves, seeking desperately to leapfrog the Cubs in seventh place, were beaten by the wins. Long hit waited by the high breeze, went for extra base hits to give Chicago a 4-4 decision over Banerott's outfit.

HISTORY REPEATING PITTSBURGERS HAVE BEEN FRONT RANK CONTENDERS FOR FIVE YEARS BUT NEVER WITH CHANCES SO BRIGHT

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Apparently the Pittsburgh Pirates have come to the conclusion that if they cannot win the championship, they will at least be in the front rank of the league.

By adopting this process of logic, the "Buccaners" just now seem to have a double lock on the top in the National League. They have a lead of such substantial proportions that it is almost impossible to see how they can lose.

But this lead isn't the main thing. The main thing is that the Pirates now enjoy have been wiped away in the past. It's the Pirates who have been wiped away in the past. It's the Pirates who have been wiped away in the past.

MANSFIELD NORMAL TO OPEN SEPT. 8

MANSFIELD, Pa., Aug. 29.—Mansfield Normal School will open Tuesday, September 8, with the largest attendance in its history. The requirements for admission this year were lowered to a full collegiate basis of four years of high school, but in spite of these lowered requirements there have been more applicants than could be taken care of, and nearly 200 have been refused admission. The dormitories have been crowded since the last of May. Additional class room buildings have been provided during the summer. The four year Home Economics course begins this fall, and the practice house has been remodelled and a complete new cookery department installed. This course is definitely preparing graduates for all types of Home Economics positions, including the Smith-Hughes high schools.

Few changes have taken place among the old members of the faculty, and additional instructors will be found on the staff. Miss Gertrude Bradt, Dean of the school, is resigning to continue her graduate studies at Teachers College. Her place will be taken by Miss Helen Williams of Ohio State University. John C. Dean, Dean of Men, has a year leave of absence for graduate studies at Harvard. The position is filled by Clifford Bulch, of Franklin & Marshall College. Miss Elsie Frowling will be an additional instructor in English. Miss L. M. Hartman, one of the state supervisors in Home Economics, will be in charge of the Home Economics Department. Miss Margaret King will be another instructor in Physical Education.

UNCLE WIGGLY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGLY AND THE POLLYWOG

Once upon a time a family of frogs lived in a pond, not far from Uncle Wiggly's hollow stump.

There was a Daddy frog and the Mother frog and a lot of little frogs, who at first had been only pollywogs.

Now you must know that before a frog is a frog he is a pollywog. Frog hatch out of eggs, just as do little chickens, and the frog eggs are in a sort of nest of weeds down in the warm water of the pond.

When the little pollywogs first come out of the soft shelled eggs the tiny chaps have only a big head, with staring eyes and a tiny tail. But, after a while little legs appear, and then the tail disappears and the pollywogs turn into a frog.

This is what happened to this family that lived in the pond near Uncle Wiggly's hollow stump.

One day the pollywogs came out of the eggs, and, in time, they turned into frogs and the Daddy frog and the Mother frog were very proud of their little family.

"You must learn to hop out on land as soon as you grow your legs," said Mr. Frog to the baby pollywogs.

And that happened, after a few weeks. The tadpoles became frogs and were very happy away from their home pond and to find new places to go so that the family was scattered.

But one day, as Uncle Wiggly sat on the edge of the pond, he felt rather sad and lonely because all the frogs, big and little, had come away that day the family heard a voice saying:

"Oh, dear! that you, Mr. Frog?" asked the rabbit gentleman. "Have you come here to live with your little frogs?"

"No," was the answer, "I am not a frog, though I hope to turn into one soon. I am only a little pollywog. I just hatched out of an egg, but I can't find any of my folks."

"Oh, poor little chap!" said the bunny uncle, as he saw the tiny tadpole, all head and eyes. It seemed, swimming near shore. "You are so late hatching out that you can't find your folks. There you can grow your legs and turn into a frog and you will not be lonesome. I have my little bunnies at my home."

"Oh, thank you!"

"You are late hatching out," said the bunny uncle, "but you are so late hatching out that you can't find your folks. There you can grow your legs and turn into a frog and you will not be lonesome. I have my little bunnies at my home."

NEWS IN THE CHURCHES

The Bible has withstood the test of infidelity, skepticism, agnosticism and deism and it will withstand the test of modernism. Bishop Adna W. Leonard, head of the Buffalo area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, declared before the School of Theology in session at Round Lake, Bishop Leonard's subject was "The Authority of the Bible." The regular mid-week prayer service of the First Presbyterian Church was held by Rev. T. Smith with a vocal duet by the Misses Ford and Challinworth.

There will be no services in either the Painted Post Presbyterian church or the Baptist church Sunday, last ministers being out of town. However, in all probability the services in these churches will be continued next Sunday. The members of the choir of First Congregational Church held an enjoyable outing at the summer home of Mrs. E. Hadden. The party was taken to the destination in an automobile provided and upon arrival a program of outdoor sports was enjoyed. At 8 o'clock a delicious dinner was served.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Painted Post Methodist Church held its regular meeting Thursday afternoon in the church parlors. A seven luncheon was served. The kitchen and serving room were decorated with flowers. The members of the church were present and a good time was enjoyed. August Jansson Completes 50 Years as Glass Blower; One of Most Efficient in the Business

August Jansson, of 105 East Fourth street, this summer completed his 50th year as a glass blower, the past 31 years of the time having been spent in the Sweden Division of Corning Glass Works.

Mr. Jansson was born in Eda, in the province of Varmland, Sweden in 1865 and went to work in the glass works in that place in the summer of 1895 when only nine years of age, and in those days that meant real work. He had to arise about 5:30 o'clock in the morning and be on the job at 6 o'clock, his working day was from 6 in the morning until 6 at night and for this work he received the meager wage of 27 cents, or one-fourth of a Swedish crown per day. As a Swedish crown amounts to about 27 in American money, this made his weekly salary about 40 cents. This had much more purchasing power than 40 cents would here today but even so it was not a very satisfactory wage.

From the time he was nine until he was 15 years of age, Mr. Jansson attended night school here working 12 hours a day. Night school was held from 7 to 9 o'clock, four evenings a week all the year except for a few weeks during the summer. This compulsory schooling was the only measure the nation had passed then in regard to child labor.

Money blowing as a trade is of ten considered to be a man-killing occupation but this theory according to Mr. Jansson is entirely wrong. He stated he thought it depended entirely upon the individual and his care for his body whether his life in the industry was long or short. Certainly Mr. Jansson, who in spite of his 50 years, is hale and hearty, is a direct contradiction to this theory. In completing his 50th year in this industry, Mr. Jansson is not outdoing his own father, P. F. Jansson of Eda, Sweden, who was employed for more than 50 years in the glass factory in that town. One of the most prized possessions August Jansson owns is the silver loving cup which was presented to his father in 1893 upon the completion of 50 years of service in the trade who work not only for money but for love of their craft.

Mr. Jansson married in Pittsburgh, during the time he was in White Plains. He has three children, Arthur, of New York; Ellen, of Rochester, and Carl Jansson, at home. His daughter is a nurse in Rochester and Arthur is employed as a taxidermist in the museum of natural history in New York.
